STATE INVESTIGATES TAYLOR MURDER STATEMENTS

Maybe the rain yesterday wasn't real, but you must admit that it was a most successful dress rehearsal.

San Pablo avenue from Portrero avenue to the northerly limit of Albany, was a nice place for accidents, thanks to the aid of the Key System's reputed street car tracks.

The ruts, some of them as much as six inches deep, collected their toll of broken springs and ruined tires that would put some of our 1900 country roads to shame.

The rain very nicely filled in the deep holes and unsuspecting motorists came down with a bang into many of them while pedestrians were splattered with mud and water.

FLAMES HIT BARREL PLANT

Flames which for a time threatened the entire structure of the Republic Steel Packing plant recently taken over by the Rheem Manufacturing company of Emeryville, yesterday noon were brought under control by the San Pablo volunteer fire department.

J. Mello, assistant chief of the San Pablo fire department stated yesterday that workmen told him that they had been burning refuse in a painting pit when the side walls and rafters of the structure became ignited.

The huge clouds of black smoke caused by the burning paint could be seen for miles and attracted a large crowd. The Republic Steel Package plant is directly across the street from the Certain-teed Products company where a large amount of inflammable material is stored.

Veteran Council Postpones Vote

Election of officers, scheduled for last night's meeting of the Allied War Veterans' Council, was postponed due to the fact that several of the delegates from the veteran organizations have not as yet been formally installed.

At the meeting, which was held in Memorial hall, preparations for observance of Washington's and Lincoln's birthdays were made. On or near these dates, representatives from the council, will visit the Richmond schools, and talk to the pupils.

Five Freighters Scheduled Here During January

Five vessels, carrying oils and other petroleum products will leave the Richmond wharves during the month, according to a report made yesterday.

The steamer Roxen, General line, is loading oils for Australia, and will leave this morning.

The Golden Fleece of the O. and O. line docks at the outer harbor today to load oils for Australia.

The Union steamer Waitemata, will arrive here Jan. 14 to load oils for Australia.

The Silver Hazel of the Kerr line is due here Jan. 16 to load for the Orient.

The steamer Golden Tide of the O. and O. line is due here on Jan. 11 to load a cargo of oil for the Orient.

$44,000 TO BE SPENT ON CHANNEL

New work will be prosecuted in the improvement of Richmond's harbor. The suggestion came from Maj. F. H. Ropes in a letter to the city council last night. It was approved and City Manager J. A. McVittie was instructed to notify the United States engineer to proceed with the proposed work.

The new work will cost approximately $44,000 and the money is made available by reason of the low bids recently received for dredging and extending the training wall.

The letter received from Major Ropes, district United States engineer reads as follows:

"Because of the low bids recently received for dredging and for extending the training wall in Richmond harbor, there remains a balance of unobligated funds contributed by the city of Richmond amounting to about $22,000. A like amount of unobligated government funds is also on hand. It is desired to expend these funds dredging a strip 125 feet wide, adjoining the channel on the east from the turn at Point Potrero to the "Ford" channel.

"This work is a part of the modified project for the improvement of the harbor and its prosecution at this time will improve the existing channel conditions and will be another step toward the completion of the new project as well. It is planned to dredge 28 fet deep at this time, charging one half the cost to the contributed funds and one half to government funds. The funds on hand are believed to be sufficient to complete the work as described.

"It is requested that I be informed whether the above plan for the expenditure of the funds contributed by the city of Richmond is approved by the city council. If so the work will be advertised as soon as practicable."

KEY WITNESS REPEATS STORY

By FRANK BARTHOLOMEW
United Press Staff Correspondent
Copwright 1930 by U. P.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 6.—UP—First official inquiry into the story related exclusively to the United Press by Otis Hefner, hitherto missing "key witness" in the eight-year-old William Desmond Taylor murder mystery, began today.

Staff parole officer Edward Whythe visited the former Folsom convict late today at an address supplied by George E. Powers, the reporter who found Hefner living under another name and attempted to keep secret his real identity.

Hefner repeated to Whyte the signed statement he had made to the United Press, and assured the parole officer that he was earnestly attempting a come-back in civil life.

Making Good

He is engaged in skilled labor, supporting his invalid wife and baby. The latter was born March 11 last year. Hefner is buying his own home. He is living under another name, and his present employers and associates do not know of his criminal record.

In Los Angeles, District Attorney Buron Fitts announced that Hefner's first-person story, obtained exclusively by the United Press, did much to round out information which his own detectives have unearthed in connec-

BAY BARRIER ASSOCIATION OPENS MEMBERSHIP DRIVE

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan 6.—The board of directors of the Salt Water Barrier association of California authorized today the opening of a campaign to secure within the year 200,000 members, for the purpose of crystalizing public opinion in favor of the construction of a salt water barrier near San Francisco bay.

In making the announcement, C. W. Schedler, president of the association stated it was the opening gun for the greatest economic advance made in California since the discovery of gold.

The statement is as follows: "The Salt Water Barrier association of California, a non-profit educational and research corporation, has been formed for the purpose of effecting the construction of a salt water barrier near San Francisco bay as the primary step in the conservation and use of the state's richest resource, water, for domestic, agricultural and industrial purposes. The federal and state governments are very actively at work thru commissions and legislative committees investigating the water problem of the state with an abundance of expert assistance. But while a vast deal of valuable data is being accumulated, it is difficult to get the facts to the people without an organization for that purpose; hence the foundation of the Salt Water Barrier association.

JURY TO HEAR MEAD REPORT

SANTA CRUZ, Jan. 6—(U.P.)—Grand jurors of Santa Cruz county received notice tonight to convene so that they may hear "new evidence" in the mystifying death of Mrs. Dora Mead more than a year ago.

The jurors received a special call from their foreman and the prospects that they would consider the reopened case within the next few days were favorable.

They will receive information from a private detective, Andrew J. Meagher, who has claimed he will produce evidence that the wife of a wealthy Chicago manufacturer was slain and not the victim of a self-inflicted wound as the verdict after an inquest indicated.

Meagher will charge that a "queen of the rum runners" acted as agent of a large ring to cover up evidence and make the death appear as a suicide, and that she has done similarly in several other cases here.

The detective will claim that testimony taken at the coroner's inquest in September, 1928, was not filed until Thursday.

A group of ministers in Santa Cruz obtained the services of Meagher and the Rev. J. C. Colyar is acting as their treasurer.

Among the startling contentions the detective first made were that a band of law violators killed Mrs. Mead because she "knew too much about their activities" and that the laxity of city and county officials had been pronounced.

Street Bandit Robs Local Man Of $32

Accosted as he was about to enter his home, Vernon Sherwood, 1824 Nevin avenue, was relieved of $32 in cash and his wallet by an armed bandit. Immediately after the holdup, the robber fled. Richmond police are conducting a close search for the man.

Sherwood reported that he had gone to a grocery store last night to make several purchases. As he neared his home he saw a man standing in front of it. As Sherwood approached him, the man drew a heavy automatic from his pocket, thrust it into Sherwood's side and ordered him to throw up his hands. Sherwood dropped his purchases and obeyed the command.

The robber quickly searched his victim's pockets, took the money and the wallet and fled.

Sherwood described the robber as about 40 years of age, about five feet, 11 inches tall; weight about 170 pounds; has a heavy growth of beard; wears a black hat and no overcoat.

Bullet Proof Vests For Local Police

With the arrival of two bullet-proof vests yesterday morning, the Richmond police department is ready for any emergency that may arise.

The city police is now equipped with riot guns, tear gas and the new bullet-proof vests.

The vests are made of steel and are covered with blue drill cloth that matches the uniform. They protect the body from the neck to the hips and will turn back a .38 calibre bullet fired at close range, police reported.

The vests were manufactured and demonstrated to the police by the California Arms company of San Francisco.

1100 Now Attending Local High School

The attendance of Richmond Union high school was increased to almost 1100 yesterday when the school reopened for the spring term. Approximately 160 pupils entered the high school from the Roosevelt and Longfellow Junior high schools. Last term's enrollment at Richmond Union high school was 999. Ninety six seniors graduated at Christmas.

This term's enrollment of Junior high school pupils is rather small in comparison to the large total of 240 that registered last August. However, the present enrollment may increase before the end of the week, as final figures have not yet been turned in by the advisory teachers. Many children from other localities are expected to swell the enrollment figures, while the wet weather also caused many absences.

The only addition to the personnel of the Richmond Union high school is Miss Hazel Olsen. Miss Olsen formerly taught in the junior high schools of Richmond, and in a graduate of Richmond Union high school. She will teach history and English at the high scool.

The Junior high schools have also received large additional quotas from the elementary schools. The enrollment figures of the Junior high and elementary schools will not be complete until the end of the week, according to Miss Nora Ashfield, assistant superintendent of schools.

Wedding Delayed For Several Months

Cupid has a way that seems to win all of the time.

Take the case of Henry S. Perry, 26, of Oakland, a marine engineer, and Isabelle Lewis, 26 a beauty specialist of Oakland.

Perry is at sea a great deal of the time—but not as far as his matrimonial intentions are concerned.

Several months ago he applied for a marriage license with Miss Lewis. He was informed at Martinez that the license could not be issued for three days.

In the meantime his ship was ordered to sea. Late Saturday, Perry's ship hove into port. He and Miss Lewis hurried to Martinez and obtained their license. Then they went to Oakland to find that their marriage license was of no value in that county.

Time had slipped upon them in the meantime, and they decided to wait until Sunday. Sunday morning, bright and early, they appeared at the home of Police Judge C. A. Odell.

Judge Odell performed the ceremony and the couple, after several months of waiting, was launched on the sea of matrimony.

COLD WAVE TO FOLLOW RAINS

Richmond was yesterday treated to a taste of eastern winter weather.

Hills surrounding the city were covered with a blanket of snow; snow flakes were seen in Berkeley, Alameda and San Francisco, and a cold stiff breeze, carrying a hint of the snow swept this city and kept citizens huddled about the family stove.

Mount Diablo in this county, was treated with a white blanket yesterday between seven in the morning and three in the afternoon.

In the Livermore hills, within the boundary of Alameda county, snow covered the highest peaks.

All of Northern California was soaked in the generous showers that fell yesterday. In the 12 hours that ended at five p. m., last night, it was reported that .61 of an inch of rain had fallen, making a total of .91 of an inch since the storm started Saturday.

Roads leading to the Livermore hills were rendered almost impassable by rains and the depth of snow there could not be recorded. San Jose school children anxiously awaited the closing of school yesterday and journeyed to Mount Hamilton where they played in the two inches of snow.

And this section of the state was not the only part that reported snow. Central California hills and the high Sierras were covered with a generous blanket

ONE INJURED IN CAR CRASH

A. C. Beavers, 448 Key boulevard, Richmond, was treated at the Hospital Richmond last night for a deep cut on the head, a possible fractured skull and a broken right shoulder.

Beavers suffered the injuries in an automobile accident between a car driven by Roy Force, 2339 Spencer street, Napa, and Beavers' car at Barrett and San Pablo avenues.

Beavers was taken to the hospital by a Wilson and Kratzer ambulance.

Church Clock Brings $4.50 In 'Forced' Sale

Rev. Primus Bennett, pastor of the First Christian church, is missing a beautiful mantle clock; a local candy store is $4.50 "in the red," and police are looking for a "slender person five feet five inches tall about 27 years old, whose eyes are small and his face is narrow."

Sunday someone entered the study of Rev. Bennett at the church which is located at Sixth street and Bissell avenue. When the person left the church he had a mantle clock under his arm.

Going to a candy store on Macdonald avenue between Fifth and Sixth street, the alleged thief entered, told the girl behind the counter that her boss had ordered the clock and demanded $4.50 in payment for it. She handed him the money, took a worthless receipt, and the man went on his way rejoicing.

Police are now looking for the man who saw his opening and killed two birds with one stone.

IF I HAD NEED OF LAUGHTER

MARGUERITE MOOERS MARSHALL

If I had need of laughter I would go
To some dark place where on a silver screen
The clowning feet of some great Chaplin know
How to make men forget the woes they've seen.

I have been told that when the gods desire
To laugh, they come to earth and watch men walk
With ever-hopeful steps, on feet that tire,
To that dark door behind which grim Fates stalk.

They watch, when heavenly joys begin to bore,
How dreams are crushed beneath the wheels of chance,
How men pile fortunes up and grasp for more,
And poets make of life a pale romance. . . .

Why do they laugh? Why do they watch with glee
This pageant stained with tears and misery?

A New Reducing Program

FOR some women, the day after Christmas is, in our opinion, just the time for making their first New Year's resolution. They are the women who overdid the pre-Christmas social, philanthropic and domestic activities that they were too tired to enjoy Christmas itself. As a delightful but misguided member of this group once confessed to us:

"What with the Women's Club party and the Children's Aid tree and the stockings for the children's ward in the hospital and the charity bazaar and the country club grab-bag and the baskets for the welfare society and entertaining my Sunday school class and practicing carols for the choral society and shopping for the family and all my friends, I'm so tired by Christmas Day that I don't care whether I have Christmas—and I certainly am thankful it comes but once a year!"

The New Year's vow we suggest to every such overworked, energetic lady is simply this: "Resolved that I will reduce—my PROGRAM!" Because what is the sense or use of working so hard at living that you wear out life, and have neither time nor energy to enjoy it?

WHEN the woman's club first came into being, alarmists used to worry about the American woman neglecting her family for her club. An analogous repression was voiced in some quarters when women began to take an interest in politics. Neither danger has materialized.

What the finest type of American woman—intelligent, conscientious, energetic, efficient, devoted, but SHORT-SIGHTED—is in point of neglecting is not family, or club, or church, or civic welfare, or social service, or culture, but HERSELF, her overtaxed body and brain.

She keeps adding one interest and activity after another to her life: the presidency of the club, the chairmanship of a committee, the membership of a political council, the leadership of a fund-raising team. She cannot say "no," even over the telephone, when a friend pleads, "You're just the person to entertain the Sunday night speaker;" or, "I knew we could depend on you to take charge of the scholarship drive;" or, "We all think you ought to head the delegation at the hearing in City Hall."

So her life becomes organized to the point of continuous overflow into the hours when she should be resting, or exercising, or playing frivolously. Feminine flesh-and-blood cannot stand the strain.

The need of a new reducing—and reduced—program for many a woman, before she plunges deeper into the winter's activities, is emphasized by Dr. John Rathbone Oliver, distinguished Baltimore psychiatrist, in his new and interesting autobiography, "Four-square." When "the most useful woman in the community" goes to pieces—as she so often does—it is the psychiatrist, nowadays, who has to pick up the pieces. That's why every such woman would do well to read and accept in time, as the warning of an expert, Dr. Oliver's diagnosis of her case. Frankly, he sees her as a gambler, reckless as any who pyramids winnings at the roulette table.

"MRS. MANIFOLD JENKINS," he says, "has a big house to run, and a large family to look after; she has also many social duties. She is president of her woman's club, secretary of a hospital board, and is on the executive committee of the Woman's Auxiliary. Her house is run well, for she is a successful housekeeper; her children are well and happy and a credit to her, for she is a successful mother. She has 'won on the red' twice.

"But she has won more often than this. For she is a good executive, a reliable secretary, a valuable member of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Board of Missions. She has 'pyramided' her interests. When she takes on a new duty, after having just been successful in performing the last one, she never thinks of dropping one or more of her old successes.

"Gradually, she 'wins on the red' time after time. She never withdraws any of her winnings, and she keeps on taking chances. Now she becomes interested in politics. She is elected to an important position on a political committee of women, a position that involves a great deal of effort, much organizing, and some unavoidable absence from home. In order to find time to do this new work well, does she turn over the house to her daughter; does she resign from the Woman's Auxiliary or from the Hospital Board? She does not. She goes on 'pyramiding her bets.'

"And, finally, of course, the red of successful achievement does not turn up. The wheel spins and this time, it turns up black. The black of a physical breakdown, or a depression, or a mental exhaustion, the black of failure. And then—she has to resign from all her various committees and presidencies. She has to give up her position as mistress in her own house. She has to go away to a nursing home and to a rest cure and to . . . a psychiatrist. For she has pyramided her bets, until she has lost everything, even her original stake of happiness and health.

"She who has insisted on 'having her eye' on everything has to shut both her eyes and rest for a long time. And she has to be taught that no one mind can thoroughly oversee twenty-one jobs without breaking down sooner or later; and that any executive who does not know how to delegate authority to others is only an inefficient busybody, and no executive at all."

All this is in store for her if she does not reduce her program in time—and there's NO TIME like the present!

Variations In Mules

THE popular boudoir mule is as diversified as the evening sandal or slipper. Quite the most sophisticated type is that with the square toe, made in velvet or fine kid with modern appliques on the toe. There are back strap mules and cut-out sandals in bright colored kid, all more or less embellished with incrustations or appliques of gold or silver. Mules of satin, moire or brocade are brightened by gold or silver as well.

A DISH A DAY

By Nancy Dorris

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1929

When turkey or chicken proves too mighty for holiday appetites, how to serve the remainder in an inviting fashion is something of a puzzler. Appetizing sandwiches, toasted or untoasted, sometimes are the solution, and again hot sandwiches garnished with celery curls, olives and cranberry jelly please the family.

A la King offers a treatment for left-over turkey that will fit into the entertainment plan beautifully. Impromptu after theatre suppers or bridge feasts call for at least one hot dish, and nothing is nicer than

TURKEY A LA KING

NANCY DORRIS

Two tablespoons butter
One-half cup mushrooms
One-fourth cup minced green pepper
Three tablespoons flour
One cup hot turkey stock
One-half cup hot cream
One-eighth teaspoon pepper
Two cups diced roast turkey
Two tablespoons minced pimento
Two egg yolks, or one egg
One teaspoon lemon juice
Two tablespoons cooking sherry
Eight pastry shells or slices of toast
Servings: Eight.

The turkey stock is made by cooking gently the turkey bones, skin and trimmings in water to cover. To extract the turkey flavor, start the bones cooking in cold water and bring to a boil, then simmer half an hour. Season with salt and pepper.

Cut the turkey—breast meat for the true a la King, or light and dark for the adapted dish—from the bones; measure and set in the icebox until wanted. Place the bones, skin and trimmings in the saucepan, cover with cold water; bring gently to a boil; reduce heat and simmer quietly for half an hour, when a rich broth should reward the maker. Season nicely.

Just before serving the creamed dainty, melt the butter in the upper portion of the double boiler, set directly over a moderate flame; add the diced mushrooms—skins, stems and all, please—and minced green pepper. Cook gently four or five minutes, being careful not to brown the butter. Stir in the flour and let cook a minute. This cooking removes all taste of flour.

Add the hot turkey stock, and, when smooth, the hot cream and peppers. Stir until smooth and then set the upper part of the boiler into the lower part in which hot water is boiling quietly. Then add the diced turkey and minced pimento to the mixture and let heat over the hot water.

Season with the lemon juice and cooking sherry and heat again several minutes. Just before serving beat in the egg yolks, or one egg; remove at once from the heat and pour over toasted bread or into hot pastry shells or cream puff cases. Garnish with a thin strip of pimento.

The World's Window

By Pierre Van Paassen

PARIS, December.

Future World

The time is coming, scientists and men of progress tell us, when the earth and the universe will be bent to do man's bidding. In spite of tremendous obstacles and many reverses, it's the laboratory that will emerge conqueror and Nature will be subjected. Rain will fall only and when the experts judge it necessary for the land. The lightning will be harnessed and the electric energy released in the heavens stored up on earth to drive factories and trains. Life will be prolonged to Methuselahlian proportions. Human organs regulated like machinery, life in those future days will be a masterpiece of clockwork, in which everything is studied, foreseen and calculated. It will be an age when there will be no more fatherlands, no more parties, no creeds; just facts. The earth will be fertilized chemically and fruit and greens will grow in a few hours at the behest of all-conquering man with his marvelous machinery. All things will move with method and automatic rationalism. No effort necessary any longer, no suffering either; just let yourself drift along. It will be an amazing world, full of marvels of science and invention. And yet, * * * and yet, one feels that some of the ancient of days in those extraordinary times of the future will sit down as they remember the past and weep over life, because humanity will be without joy, and the world will have lost its soul.

Evacuation Joy

Rain poured down in torrents when the French tri-color was lowered one afternoon recently from the roof of the Aix-la-Chapelle Citadel, and the regiments belonging to the Army of Occupation marched out, home to France. The retreat went almost unobserved by the civil population. It was as if the event had not the slightest interest to them. By 8 in the evening the last troops had been entrained and not a Frenchman left in Aix. The troop train moving out of the station, however, seemed to be the signal for the city's awakening. Armies of workmen rushed upon public buildings and fitted them out with rows and rows of electric bulbs, which began to glow all over the town by 10. Eleven o'clock saw the city turned into a sea of light. The streets were impassable. Delegations and parades marched in from all sides to the Rathaus, where a choral society of a thousand voices was grouped on the steps. At a quarter to twelve the Mayor and other dignitaries appeared on the balcony. He called for a moment's silence in commemoration of the German fallen. The silence ended in the softly swelling chant of the choir: "Ich hat 'ein Kamerad" ("I Had a Comrade Once"). Then there was another silence. And we wondered what the crowd was waiting for. The answer came soon. Midnight struck and then one bell started to ring, then another, then two more. Soon the air was filled with the clanging of chimes and carillons, and the huge crowd suddenly burst out spontaneously as it were, with a thundering: "Deutschland Ueber Alles." But the French couldn't hear it any more. They were far away.

"Image Stormers"

In spite of the vigilance of the police, the garde mobile and the State gendarmerie, many statues throughout France are covered these mornings with blood-red inscriptions. That is to say, the pedestals and columns on which the statues rest. As the liquid used by the nocturnal scriveners is of a particularly acid character, it takes days to efface the inscriptions. The words that appear in the morning, now on this village square, now on that gorgeous piece of Parisian sculpture, are simply these: "A Bas la Guerre!" ("Down with War!"). Particular attention is paid to statues representing Generals and great warriors of history, of which there are not a few in France. Occasionally a statesman gets his dose of red paint, too. For instance, the statue of Adolph Thiers at St. Germain, never noticed by anybody, had suddenly drawn the attention of the inscribers one morning recently. "Vandals at work," say the newspapers. "Scandalous Huns." "Image-Stormers" are other epithets thrown at the heads of the unknown painters. Still upon reflection, maybe they are not so bad, those vandals. Might they not be touched by the grace of the Locarno spirit? And then wasn't Mr. Kellogg recently in France? Not that any one should suspect the former Secretary of State of marauding about at night armed with a pot of paint. But isn't it significant?

Helping the School Child

By Emilie Hoffman

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1929

IN THE schools great efforts are being made to instruct the pupils in health habits. If there was universal home co-operation in these efforts the health program of the school child would not be the serious problem it is to-day.

Health habits should be formed long before the child reaches the school age and this must be accomplished in the home. Habit formation is the strongest factor in the health training of the child and this should be consummated under the tactful and incessant supervision of the mother. If this is done in the home the school child will understand the necessity of correct diet, ample sleep, regular elimination, regular brushing of teeth, cleanliness, &c. These are the important habits of personal hygiene that a five-year-old child will practice under proper and continuous training, and this child will readily respond to the school health instruction.

It is a wise innovation that health certificates are now required for the initial entrance of children in our schools. It assures correction of remedial defects and gives the child a fair chance to forge ahead in school progress without the handicap of impaired health that in most cases necessitates frequent absences.

Having laid the foundation for good health in the home, parental co-operation should not become lax during the school age. The school health program includes adequately equipped school buildings with healthful surroundings. How about the home environment? Does your house provide ample sunshine, proper heat and good ventilation, the requisites of healthful surroundings? Have you a place in the home where your children may study unmolested and in comfort to avoid nerve strain? Is it well lighted to avoid eye strain, and is it equipped as well as your means will permit?

In school they teach proper eating habits and stress wholesome, carefully prepared lunches with a sufficient period for eating them. Do you have meals ready so the child may eat leisurely, and do you insist upon their eating a breakfast every day?

The school health program includes facilities for recreation. In your supervision of the child's leisure time do you allow two hours for daily play in the open air and do you provide opportunities and materials for the child to express himself creatively and constructively during the leisure periods?

It is quite apparent that there is much that can be done in the home to co-operate with the school in establishing the perfect health program for the school children which counts for so much in their education.

Care of the Enamel Sink

DISCOLORATIONS in the enamel sink can be avoided with a little care. If you keep a garbage receptacle in the sink, stand it on a circular rubber mat. A sink drainer for garbage is objectionable because the acids are liable to destroy the enamel.

If you use the heavy pots and pans never stand these in the sink unless you have a wooden rack or rubber mat to protect the sink. The careful housewife will always use either of these protectors during the preparation of meals and the dish washing.

With these precautions washing with ordinary white soap and hot water will keep the sink clean. Once a week rub the sink with kerosene before washing with the hot suds.

The Beauty Shop

By Frances Olivier

SOMEHOW they got on the old, old brains-beauty topic. And there were those who opined that a girl with beauty had no need of brains, and there were those who averred that a girl with brains had no need of beauty. Nobody present, thank heaven, was stupid enough or ignorant enough of history to say that the two could not exist together. And then a well-known advertising man took the floor, a man who specializes in the advertising of beauty products, and this is what he said:

© FRANCES OLIVIER

"I have never known or met a charming woman who did not possess intellect." (Mr. H. is not precisely young, and he is reputed to have a remarkably sensitive eye when it comes to pulchritude.)

"History tells us," continued this sometimes pedantic gentleman, "that Ninon de Lenclos had a suitor when she was in her eighties, and that she was still surrounded by ardent admirers when she was in the nineties. Inconceivable that a woman of eighty could possess physical beauty. She must have allured by her mind and her personality, which is but another manifestation of mind.

"It is intelligence which brings sparkle to the eyes and expression to the face. Back of the ability to wear clothes well, distinctively, is a certain intelligence. And behind much that passes the average eye for natural beauty is the intelligent use of beauty preparations...for sheer ability to hold interest, give me the sparkling mind."

And they, kind reader, if you care to know it, are our sentiments to a T. Based on observations past and present, on the history of charmers of yesterday and on the gossip concerning several charmers of our own day.

Not so many years ago we heard a distinguished, wealthy and handsome Frenchman say that he would rather sit and listen to a certain great Italian actress speak, than dance in the arms of the loveliest model in the Quartier. Nor was this a verbal gesture.

For reasons of state, the gentleman lived in Washington, but every time he went to Paris, also for reasons of state, he made the long journey to Rome, just to sit and listen to the "pearls that fell from the lips" of a woman who was far from being young and far from being beautiful, according to the opinion of many. As a wit once remarked, she was "worse." She was hypnotic.

On the other hand, we have often wondered why so many people seem to think that brains and beauty cannot exist together. Maybe it is because so many brainy women show an elaborate contempt for chic and mere physical beauty? And may not that be just a trifle silly?

The Farmer's Advice

By Alfalfa Smith

BE MODERATE!

Why stuff yourself when enough is enough and—YOU KNOW IT?

Why buy two when one will do?

Why drink two cups of coffee when one will do?

"Be moderate in all things."

Work moderately.

Play moderately.

The four great things as put down by Epictetus for the benefit of Marcus Aurelius were: Moderation, equanimity, work and LOVE.

Try This—

Flour sacks make good kitchen tie-aprons. A band of bias plaid gingham to bind the edge will make them attractive, or they may be dyed.

You and Your Child

Fairy Tales

GENERATION after generation has been brought up on fairy tales. Never did the parents of yesterday think to question, "Are fairy tales good for the child?" But in this age of enlightened parenthood, we are beginning to evaluate all the old practices, and hence, the fairy tale is being held up to the light.

Most educators, as well as most parents, feel that the right kind of fairy tale is decidedly good for the child. In the first place, what joy these stories give the youngsters! How big their eyes grow in listening to the adventures of Goldilocks, or Cinderella! These little tots need food for their imaginations as well as for their stomachs. And with use their imaginations will become more vivid. We surely want our children to keep their imaginative powers strong, as a live imagination adds color and zest and beauty to life, whether we become creative artists or merely appreciators of the creations of others.

The really true story about ordinary, every-day happenings has its place, but children enjoy it hugely. But in order to feed and stimulate the little ones' imaginations, we should occasionally give them that much loved joy, a well-chosen fairy tale.

How does one distinguish the good fairy tale from the bad? What sort of stories are objectionable? The horrible, terrifying kind should always be avoided. If a story, otherwise good has some of these objectionable features, we may be able to change them or leave them out. Tales should emphasize the success of trickery, brutality or cunning must also be banished. Then, also, the Aladdin type of story is not to be recommended. In this kind of tale, a person gets everything he wants simply by wishing. Better to tell children stories of people who achieve their desires through accomplishment. We don't want our children to get the idea that they can lie down on the job, and, nevertheless, get results by going off into a wishing corner. We want them to face life's battles and not day dream about them.

There are many well-chosen collections of fairy tales on the market, both of old and new stories. If we are careful in our selections, we may be sure that our fairy tales will do our youngsters no harm, but on the contrary, will help them by stimulating their imaginations and teaching them many useful lessons.

The Bolero Vogue

THE bolero has had a great influence on fashions now being shown for resort wear and will continue its sway in spring styles. There are various and sundry interpretations of the bolero theme. The actual bolero back is very often much longer and covers the waistline. A new cape treatment shapes itself bolero-like and continues around under the arms.

There is the little jacket which follows the bolero line, down the back with an upward curve in the front. Still other instances are seen in wide tucking, in loose panels, and in band effects. The bolero back is one of the most effective ways of making the normal waistline silhouette more wearable.

Glove Decoration

DELICATELY fur is applied to the embellishment of glove tops and now is an important note. Alexandrine of Paris, for one, makes a long slip-on glove and a gauntlet as well of beige glace kid, omitting the stitching from the back and edging the top with a narrow pointed band of beige shaved lamb, bringing the fur in a diagonal line down to the wrist section. The very, very short haired furs only, of course, are possible for this sort of trimming and when well done the effect is undeniably attractive.

IT HAPPENS IN EVERY HOME

'WELL, Albert," said Mrs. Dart, "it will seem nice to have the children back with us from college for the holidays.'

"Yes, mother," said Mr. Dart. "It will be immense."

"Why, here's Bob pulling up in a taxi now."

"Yes, and that's Sally coming up the steps. I can tell her gait."

"Hello, Bob, how's everything at Yale?" inquired Mr. Dart. 'And give me a kiss, Sally. I swear those three months at Vassar did you a lot of good."

"And now that you children are here," said Mrs. Dart, "I'll get things started for dinner right away."

"Sorry, mom," said Bob, "but I've got a date to take Gracie Fink to dinner. She's a hot number I couldn't pass up."

"And I'm going to dine and dance with Harold Ruggles," said Sally. "However, I'm not in such a rush I can't toss off a few cocktails with you."

"All right, children," said Mrs. Dart. "I'll have Manko shake some cocktails right away."

"Hope you don't mind my running out as soon as I arrive," said Bob to Mr. Dart.

"Certainly not, son," said Mr. Dart. "You're both here for ten days and there'll be plenty other nights we can have a regular family dinner."

"I wouldn't say 'plenty,' pop," said Bob. "You see, I'm out to-morrow night with Joe Bilk's sister and the night after that there's an affair down at the Squiggs's. Then I'm dated with Gracie Fink the next two evenings."

"I don't see how I can squeeze in an evening for dinner, either," said Sally. "I'm being rushed to-night, to-morrow night and three evenings after by some boys I met at the Junior Prom."

"Well, anyway," said Mr. Dart, "we can count on being together for Sunday night supper."

"I've got to go to a Sunday hop at a roadhouse on the turnpike," said Bob.

"And I simply can't get out of a whoopee party myself then," said Sally.

"It's nice to have you children so popular," said Mr. Dart. "However, don't mind your mother and me. We can all get together some day for lunch."

"Lunch?" said Bob. "I've got a dozen girls for luncheon dates already and only nine lunches to fit 'em in. I don't see how I could possibly cancel one to get home for you, mom and pop."

"I know just how it is with Bob," said Sister Sally. "My schedule's full of luncheon dates, too . . . luncheons I simply can't get out of."

"Well," said Mr. Dart, who was famous for his persistence, "let's leave it this way; we'll all get together for breakfast some day this week."

"Not a chance," replied Bob. "In the first place, I won't be in before 3 A. M. any morning and that means bed till 11.30 at the least."

"I'm not as bad as Bob," said Sally, "because a couple of nights I expect to get home by 2.30 in the morning. But I don't think I'll be up early enough to have breakfast with either mom or pop."

"Well, maybe we could arrange to get in bed with you children and have breakfast some one of those mornings," said Mr. Dart. "We sure would like to get together with you for a meal before you go back."

"Daddy, dear, you'd be disturbing my sleep," said Sally. And Bob said, "Sally is right."

"Well, then," said Mr. Dart, "mom and I had better kiss you goodby now. And we'll leave it this way: When Uncle George dies we'll see each other at the funeral and I'll take you all out to dinner somewhere then."

Then again, the stockholders in the company may be making up their loss on the street car line with stock they hold in automobile manufacturing companies.

But then we shouldn't kick. Maybe the street cars are entitled to a pension. Some day the powers that be may discover that they are antiquated, inadequate, dangerous and a waster of time.

Did you ever try to figure the time lost by obeying the laws in passing street cars while you are driving along San Pablo?

By observing all traffic regulations you pass three to four street cars between Portrero avenue and the city hall in Oakland.

You lose from one to three minutes in getting by the street car which hogs the center of the street and splashes mud and water on just and unjust as it bumps along.

Multiply that one to three minutes by three or four and then multiply that figure by the thousands of motorists that use San Pablo avenue every day.

Cold Wave To Follow Rain Storm Here

of the soft white flakes. Roads in the Sierras were blocked by heavy drifts and the storm at times reached the proportions of a blizzard.

Weather officials issued a general warning to the bay region that a cold wave will follow the storm today, which will probably hold the state in its grip for the remainder of the week.

In the Lake Tahoe region all roads were blocked by the storm. Yosemite valley experienced the first snowfall of the season on Saturday and Sunday, ending the driest season experienced in the park since 1917. Wawona, Big Oak Flat and Tioga roads were reported closed by the storm.

More than 15 inches of snow fell in Truckee, Tahoe and Blue canyon yesterday, it was reported, making a total of 35 inches since the storm started.

Winter resorts have hailed the snow storm, as they have been forced to postpone winter sports because of lack of snow.

San Joaquin and Sacramento valleys were blessed with a generous downfall of rain. Los Angeles and other southern California points were also hit.

6,000,000 LIVES LOST IN FILM REVOLT

A war in which the casualties were almost as large as those of the world conflict forms a thrilling background for Paramount's "The Four Feathers" current venture of Merian C. Cooper and Ernest B. Schoedsack soldier-of-adventure producers.

"Late statistics place the loss of life in the World war at 8,543,515," asserts Schoedsack while the Dervish rebellion against the British in the African Sudan in 1881 cost more than 6,000,000 lives.

"Native losses were many times those of the British. Unschooled in civilized warfare and inspired by their religious feelings, the blacks proved absolutely fearless. Prominent in these gory battles were the Fuzzy Wuzzys whom Kipling has immortalized in song and poetry as 'first class fighting men.'"

And it was in the Fuzzy Wuzzy country that Cooper and Schoedsack re-enacted batle scenes of the Derish rebellion. Hundreds of Fuzzy Wuzzys who appeared in the film sequences of this story by A. E. W. Mason, are the sons of men who actually fell before the guns of riflemen.

Upon their return from the Dark continent with 60,000 feet of exposed film of battle scenes and thrilling wild animal close-ups, Cooper and Schoedsack directed the plot sequences at the Paramount Hollywood studios, with Richard Arlen, Fay Wray, Clive Brook, William Powell, Theodor von Eltz, Noah Beery and George Fawcett acting the principal roles. The plot deals with the regeneration of a cowardly soldier who goes to Africa and braves the perils of native warfare and jungle wild life to save his former comrades from death at the hands of the tribesmen.

The picture has been rated as the best spectacle thriller of the year 1929. It comes to the Fox-California theater for a two day run beginning today.

The talking comedy "The Right Bed" is also on the program.

Protect Your Furniture

A $1.25 to Rid Your Home of Moths May Save You Hundreds of Dollars.

MORTEMOTH KILLS MOTHS

The gas from Mortemoth crystals not only protects your furniture for a long time, but contact with it kills all moths, their eggs and their dangerous larvae in furniture which is already infested.

The proper method of using Mortemoth crystals is to tie them in small sacks, and to place these sacks down in the channel of the piece, as deeply as possible, behind the cushions, so that, upon expansion, the gas will spread and fill the spring units in the back and in the bottom of the piece.

When the sacks are empty, fill them again.

district, with the menace of salt water hanging over their livelihoods and property for several years, are so well aware of the need of the barrier that they have gotten enthusiastically behind the association.

The whole bay area will be equally interested when its people realize that little or no industrial progress will be possible in the future without the construction of the barrier and likewise the entire state because the building of the barrier will be the primary step towards provision of a comprehensive plan for the conservation and use of millions of acre feet of water now running to waste, but which must be saved if California is to continue to gain in population and wealth.

The educational and membership campaign of the association is starting appropriately with the publication by the state of the Walker R. Young joint federal-state report on the barrier proving beyond argument both the desirability and feasibility of the project. When this report is understood by the public the movement to gain membership and support for the association and its purposes should become intensely popular.

Seeks Financial Support

"It is a popular movement because the building of the barrier means more jobs, better jobs, better earnings for agriculture and industry and better markets for both. Therefore, we seek financial support for the association not on the basis usual with promotional organizations of those intangibles coming from community efforts, but as an actual investment protecting and promoting present and future earnings of labor and capital.

"The backers of the barrier are in a peculiar fortunate position in their relations to California's water problem, for they have no concern with the riparian feuds involving mining, irrigation and power disputes existing elsewhere throughout the state.

Available For All

The association proposes to save the water after it has passed all of the disputants and to make it available for all who want to use it. The barrier, creating a fresh water lake half the size of Lake Erie, will guarantee a supply so plentiful and so cheap that the nightmare of water shortage, the chief handicap to the continued development of California, will be ended forever."

Headquarters for the association from which the membership campaign will be directed have been opened in the Russ Building San Francisco. The officers and directors of the association are: C. W. Schedler, pres., Pittsburg; Paul S. Wetmore, V. P. Benicia, E. L. Dearborn, V. P. Fairfield, Jos. E. Claine, V. P. Oakland, Fred D Parr, V. P. San Francisco, E. M. Downer, V. P. Richmond, Thos. M. Liver, Gall Bladder and Stomach Trouble Relieved

2946 Morgan Ave.
Oakland, Cal.
Nov. 19, 1929.

THE FONG WAN HERB CO.

Dear Mr. Fong—I am writing this letter to express my gratitude for the splendid results and benefits I have received from the use of the Chinese Herbs prepared by you.

I had a complication of Liver, Gall-Bladder and Stomach Trouble with sharp, stabbing pains in the lower right side of my Abdomen. The region of the Liver was exceedingly sore and tender; so much so that even loose clothing became irritating and uncomfortable. My Stomach was also very sore to the touch and felt as if there were a lump the size of an egg in it. After meals, food which was very sour and burned the throat, was returned to the mouth.

This condition steadily became worse over a period of a year During this time, I was treated by two doctors without any appreciable results. Both decided that an operation was necessary.

By good fortune, I came into contact with a man whom you had treated successfully for an Ulcerated Stomach, and he strongly urged me to take your treatment. This I did.

Results were noticeable the very first week, and now, after six weeks, I am entirely free from the terrible stabbing pains and the soreness over my Liver. My digestion is good. The old feeling of lassitude has completely disappeared and I feel much brighter and more energetic than I have for years.

I am most happy to strongly recommend the herbs of the Fong Wan Herb Co. as prepared by you.

Wishing you unbounded success, and again thanking you for what you have done for me, I am
Very cordially yours,
CYRIL MAW.

School nurse says all girls should know this

TALKING to a roomful of high school girls on personal hygiene, an experienced district nurse said: "One of the basic rules of health for girls is to keep the system functioning naturally at all times. Normal exercise and diet habits should be encouraged. But when necessary there's no harm in taking nujol, since it works mechanically and can't disturb the normal functions of any organ of the body. Particularly with girls, there are times when nujol should always be taken. Take a spoonful every night for a few days. It's a thoroughly safe and harmless method. It won't cause distress or gas pains or griping."

Nujol is different from any other substance. It contains no drugs or medicine. It can be taken safely no matter how you are feeling because it is so pure and harmless, and works so easily. Every woman should keep a bottle on hand. Every druggist has this remarkable substance. Get the genuine.

"IS EVERYBODY HAPPY?"

By ELEANOR CAREY

This novel is based on the Warner Bros. & Vitaphone production starring Ted Lewis

SYNOPSIS

Ted Molnar, unable to find a job as violinist in jazz-mad New York is forced to play jazz as a saxophonist in a Hungarian Cafe. His father disowns Ted for playing the jazz he so despises. When his wife sympathizes with Ted, the father leaves home. The public is captivated by Ted's individual style. Gail Wilson and her employer, Mr Abrams, help Ted to organize a band act of his own and induce him to engage as dancer, Lena Schmidt, his Budapest sweetheart who had received him so coldly in New York. Lena tries to reawaken his love and Gail, whom he now loves sincerely, is jealous. Lena quits the act and Gail goes on in her place, but refuses to listen to Ted until Mrs Molnar explains the actual state of his relations to Lena. Lena discovers Ted's father working as a sweeper at Carnegie Hall.

INSTALLMENT XXIV

"Thanks, Ted, that's sweet of you!" And her sincere eyes convinced him that in her heart Lena had suffered and was truly contrite. "How is your mother?" she asked solicitiously—"It's been so long since I have seen her. Please remember me to her—won't you". At times I am very lonely—sometime may I come to see her again?"

"Surely." Ted said, and at the word loneliness his heart strings released the sympathy in his soul for any lonely thing and he asked. "Why don't you have dinner with us today? This being Christmas, you know, mother is preparing the fixins' and everything. We can talk over old times and that will be better than being lonely."

"Oh, Ted," she cried in happiness, "It will be wonderful if you want me and you think I will be welcome! I was going out to some cheap restaurant for my Christmas dinner all by myself!"

"I've been a stubborn old fool."

The call boy notified Ted that he was to be next, and as he looked up he noticed the manager walking toward the center of the stage in front of the curtain. Ted listened to the announcement he was making:

"We are very fortunate, this afternoon, in having on this bill, a great musical conductor. He is not only a fine artist but a fine man as well—and whenever there's a benefit for any worthy cause, you can always depend on it—he will be there."

Ted's father, during the announcement, had been listening, his broom in his hand. He looked for all the world as a soldier at ease with his dignified—almost military bearing. He was excited and very much interested.

The manager continued, "This man has the distinction of having earned recognition for jazz music. There was a time, you know, not so long ago—when jazz music was considered a mild form of lunacy—and sometimes—not so mild—but it had now reached the stage where critics admit that it expressed our Modern American Life more nearly than any other form of music. I want to introduce to you—the man who has done the most to bring about this revolutionary change—Ladies and gentlemen—Mr. Ted Todd, and his band!"

At this point the curtain went up, and on the stage stood Ted in position to immediately begin the first number—baton raised for the signal.

Mr. Molnar stood aghast. His son? Playing "Poet and Peasant?" The music filled the huge auditorium and drifted out to the disappointed ones listening intently outside the building. It soothed the impatient and intolerant spots in the father's heart and softened it. His eyes filled with tears, which unashamedly, he wiped away with the back of his hand muttering, "My boy—my boy!" The sweet sounds of harmony were as balm to his wounded heart—and all the antagonism faded away as snow melts beneath the morning rays of the sun.

"That's good music—old fool that I am," he said to himself, "Good Music! How dare I face the boy—now that I want to so badly? He might laugh at this silly old man—and justifiably, too! I am ashamed of myself—ashamed until it hurts!"

Lena appeared and stood watching Ted while he bowed and acknowledged the applause. As she went farther into the wings she saw Mr. Molnar. The shock of seeing him made her blink her eyes and peer again and she went to his side and asked, "Are you Mr. Molnar?" Lena leaned forward the old man and scanned his face.

He stood, with eyes down—recognizing her, but too ashamed to let her know who he is—"Molnar? Molnar? I don't know him, lady," and he started to turn away.

By this time Lena had had time to get a clear picture of his face and she knew she had guessed rightly.

"But you are?" she announced definitely. "I know surely now! Does Ted know you are here?"

"No, and I don't want him to know, Lena. You mustn't tell him."

"But he has looked everywhere for you," she said to him, "Come with me!"

"I can't face him. I can't face him—I'm so ashamed," the old man almost whimpered.

The terrific and incessant applause of the audience after Ted's act forced him into a curtain call and a short speech, "Ladies and Gentlemen, thank you very much. I am sorry I cannot play for you again, but there are a lot of good acts back there, all dressed up and no place to go. Now if those of you who would still like to hear some more, will come up to my house after the show, and have Christmas dinner with me, I'll play for you all night. Just meet me on the corner, outside. Is everybody happy"

Quickly leaving the stage, anxious to get away—Ted met Lena in the wings—dressed for the street.

"All ready to go?" he asked her.

"Yes—but I have a surprise for you first. Come back to my dressing room a minute? It's all right this time—come on—I'm not dangerous!" noticing the look of hesitation that spread over his face. Ted followed Lena into her dressing room—wondering what it was all about, and stopped at the entrance, speechless. Finally he found his voice and he said, delightedly, "Father!"

As he went to grasp the old man into his arms his father held back with aloofness, and Ted asked him at once, "Haven't you forgiven me yet?"

"Yes, Ted," came slowly from the old man's abashed lips, "but I haven't forgiven myself. I've been such a stubborn old fool—I don't see how you could ever forgive me."

Joyously Ted put his arm around his father. "We won't even go into that, Father. We'll just call everything even!"

Only one black cloud now—so far as his father was concerned. If only his father would like his music, take an interest in it, as his mother had done. Ted felt that so far as his family was concerned, he'd be happy as a lark.

As if he divined his son's thoughts, the old man admitted in an embarrassed low tone, "I liked your music, Ted!"

And Ted taken by surprise, felt the joy, he had so earnestly desired, surge through his veins. Very quietly and sincerely he turned to his father and with a ring in his voice he said:

"I'd rather hear that from you than from all the rest of the world!" And the happy trio left the theatre for home.

Just after Ted left his home for Carnegie Hall, where the preceding incidents took place, Mrs. Molnar looked anxiously at the clock. It was time, she told herself that she arrived. Nervously she moved about—the maid standing by to do her bidding. The doorbell rang, and Mrs. Molnar said to the maid, "Never mind, I'll answer it," and rushing to the door she opened it. In walks Gail carrying Christmas packages, and a happy smile on her face.

Mrs. Molnar gave her a motherly hug and kiss as Gail gasped, "Merry Christmas!"

"It will be the merriest we've had in a long, long time," said Ted's mother happily. "And Ted doesn't suspect a thing! He'll be the most overjoyed person in this city when he comes home tonight and finds you here. I never knew a man more in love with a woman in my life! He writes music to you, he plays to you, he even attempts to sing to you. Child, he worships you!"

"I've been a stubborn little ninny to doubt him. I'm so glad you came to me and made me see the truth, for I was so jealous of that other girl!"

"Don't you bother about that 'other girl.'" Mrs. Molnar reassured her. "Ted put her out of his heart long ago—there just wasn't room for anybody but you—now come on—hang up your things."

Mrs. Molnar and Gail went into the living room, and opened the packages the girl had brought. She spread out a dozen handkerchiefs, for Ted's mother to see.

"Look, Mrs. Molnar, I made these for Ted!" And the old lady scanned the handwork on each one.

HIGH CAGERS TO FACE TOUGH SEASON

A hard season is ahead of the cagers of Richmond Union high school on their entrance into the Alameda County Athletic league, according to Ivan W. Hill athletic coach at the local high school.

The seasoned veterans of the league will offer stronger opposition to the Richmond boys than has ever been offered by teams not members of the league. Berkeley, Piedmont, Alameda, Hayward and Emeryville high schools are all recognized as the possessors of five of the snappiest high school quintets in this section of California.

Richmond high is also handicapped because of the scarcity in its ranks of former varsity men. Only two varsity veterans, Joe Viano and George Degnan, are left over from last year's squad. Several former Richmond Union high school stars "Rusty" Lane, George Weeks and Roy Carlson are ineligible to play with Richmond high school in league games as they are not allowed to participate in league games after taking part in high school athletics for three years.

However, a speedy B string has stepped into the gap left by the veterans and is trying hard to make up for the loss of seasoned material. Boys such as Carl Drexel, "Beza" Marcus, Don Randal', Howard Dalton, Kenney, Les Myers and Bruno Roveda show promise of becomnig as skilfull in the art of handling a basketball as their famed predecessors. A group of husky young fellows —Ed Masek, Leslie Scarcella and Leo Passone have added strength to the varsity team.

In order to test their own strength before entering the league, the Richmond Union high school varsity have scheduled a contest with Lodi high school for Friday afternoon, at Lodi.

The first clash of the Alameda Athletic league in which the local varsity, B and C aggregations will be played against Hayward high school Jan. 17, in the Hayward high school gym. The C conest will start at 7 o'clock; the B game will be played at 8 o'clock and the varsity battle will be fought at 9 o'clock. The C game is only a workout for the lightweights of the two schools, as there is no C competition in the league.

Most league games are played immediately following school hours, but the Richmond and Hayward school authorities are attempting to arrange for another contest when Hayward plays a return game against Richmond in the local high school gymnasium.

The league basketball games in which Richmond Union high school will play have been scheduled as follows:

Hayward at Hayward, Jan. 17.
Alameda at Richmond Jan. 21.
Emeryville at Emeryville Jan. 24
Berkeley at Berkeley Jan. 28.
Piedmont at Richmond Jan. 31.
Berkeley at Richmond Feb. 4.
Hayward at Richmond Feb. 7.
Alameda at Alameda Feb. 11.
Emeryville at Richmond Feb. 14.
Piedmont at Piedmont Feb. 18.

Church League Games Tonight

The First Methodists will tangle with the First Presbyterian cagers tonight in the main event on the Y. M. C. A. Church league card. The Grace Lutherans will meet the Community Methodists in an attempt to break the tie in the B division of the league.

Tonight's A game is exceptionally significant for both contestants, but especially so for the First Methodists. If they are victorious, they will only be inferior to the league-leading First Christians by one loss. If they lose, they will be tied with the Presbyterian and the First Baptists for last place in the league.

Great significance is also attached to tonight's B clash between the Community Methodists and the Lutherans. Both squads are tied with the San Pablo Baptists for first place in the B division.

Because of the importance of tonight's game, a record gallery is expected to turn out to the reopening of the Church league, after the Christmas holidays.

Scout Band Will Rehearse Tonight

Rehearsal of the Scout Band will be held in the Longfellow school tonight, and will continue every Tuesday night.

STUDEBAKER, FURRER, MAMMY CAGERS CITY LOOP VICTORS

Garfinkle's cagers suffered their first defeat of the season last night when they lost to the Furrer's squad in a whirlwind game 25 to 24. The Studebakers climbed one step nearer the title by swamping Ben Malik's quintet 36 to 19. The Santa Fe Renegades of the B division lost to the Mammy's Place boys by a score of 26 to 11.

Seldom have the fans of Richmond seen such basketball as was played by the plucky Furrer aggregation and the league-leading Garfinkle's last night. Playing a phenomenal game during the first half, the Furrer cagers were on the heavy end of an 18 to 14 score at the end of the second quarter. Furrer's warriors continued their fast pace during the third period of the contest, with the result that the scoarboard read 25 to 18 at the beginning of the last quarter. Then Garfinkle's squad began to realize that their defeatless record was in danger of being broken, and started a terrific drive into Furrer territory, which brought their own total to 24 with but one minute to play. Furrer's was unable to sink a single shot during the last quarter, and it was just plain grit that kept the Furrer goal untouched during that last minute of breathless action. When the final whistle blew, Garfinkle's 100 percent record had fallen, and the outlook for a tie in the league became fairly bright.

As a result of last night's contest, Garfinkle's only hold a one game lead over the Studebakers. If the Studebakers defeat the Oleum Union Oil Thursday night, and if Garfinkle's is defeated by Santa Fe the same evening, the Studebakers and Garfinkle's team will be tied for first place.

The Studebakers displayed their usual speed last night in their clash with Ben Malik's five. Ben Malik's team showed plenty of fight, but they demonstrated inability to make their shots count.

Mammy's Place last night maintained its fast pace that has sent the team rocketing to the top of the B division. The Santa Fe Renegades were on the offensive during the first half, but soon went down under the swift attack of Mammy's boys.

Garfinkle's team will tangle with Santa Fe Thursday night at 9 o'clock, while the Studebakers will clash with the Union Oil squad of Oleum at 8 o'clock.

First Game

Furrers 25—Hall 6, Melin 4, forwards; Kenney 2, center; Lane 4 DeBaere, guard; substitute—Baldwin 9.

Garfinkle's 24— Barbiere 8, Gillan 4, forwards; Flynn 4, center; G. Gordon, Lee, guards; substitutes—Lemkuhl 4, forward; W. Gordon 4, Milicevich, guards.

Third Game

San Pablo Five Beats Chinese Cage Team Here

The San Pablo Baptist cage team last night defeated the Chung Mei home team of Oakland by a score of 20 to 10 at the Y. M. C. A. court.

A. Moitoza was high score man for the locals making 10 points. Courtney and Carvenka made five points each for the winners.

Theodore was high man for the losers, making four buckets.

The two teams will meet Friday night at the Y in a second game.

The line-ups:

San Pablo (20)—Cervenka (5), Moitoza (10), forwards; Vieria, center; Nevis, Courtney (5), guards; Van Dusen, sub.

Santa Rosa 11 Beats Antioch

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 6.—Too much Ernie Nevers, yesterday spelt defeat for the Antioch American Legion football team, when it met the Santa Rosa legion team in a battle for the State championship at Kezar stadium.

After the practically unstopped Nevers and his squad called it a day, the score was Santa Rosa 25, Antioch 6.

Nevers accounted for three touchdowns for the champs, and after a 78 yard march down the field, Cox made the lone score for the Antioch squad.

Rain Cancels 2 Ball Games

Two much heralded baseball tilts failed to take place Sunday because of the watery condition of the First street and El Cerrito diamonds. The Thomas Motors and San Pablo boys decided not to risk a ducking, while the Moitoza Fords and the Corey Garagemen also did not report for duty.

TAYLOR DEATH STATEMENT PROBED

tion with the long dormant case since it was recently reopened by Friend William Richardson, former governor of California.

Hefner stated to five staff men of the United Press, after he had been discovered and prevailed upon to admit his identity and talk by George E. Powers, that;

Member Of Ring

He was a member of a narcotic ring in Los Angeles in 1922, in which Taylor, Edward Sands and others were involved;

That word was passed around among the racketeers that Taylor had turned "rat" and was informing the federal authorities;

That he and Sands went out to Taylor's home after midnight Feb. 2, 1922, to deliver a package of "hype," and that Sands discovered Taylor stretched out on the floor with a bullet in his heart;

Suspect Leaves Home

That they—Hefner and Sands—saw a well-known motion picture figure hurriedly leaving the Taylor home just before Sands entered it and discovered the body.

In another conversation with United Press representatives, Hefner added further details to his initial statement.

"Sands had a key to Taylor's home," he said. "He used to be employed as Taylor's chauffeur and valet, before he was ostensibly discharged on a phony charge of burglary.

"I never knew why this charge was made by Taylor against Sands, except that it had something to do with a temporary falling out over the 'hype' racket. They continued to do business after that incident, which occured a few months before Taylor was killed and which was printed in all the papers.

Narcotics Purchased

"I have seen Taylor give Sands money in exchange for narcotics several times after that. Once he gave him $500, which was counted in my presence."

Hefner, exceedingly tall, with a rather frank face and even features, is nervous and worried about his enforced re-entry into the celebrated murder case, which involved such figures in the original inquest as Mary Miles Minter, Mabel Normand, Edna Purviance and Douglas MacLean.

"My new identity here is entirely clean and it's my own since I was paroled from Folsom in 1926," he said. "I've worked endless hours, and without recreation, to get a fresh start and to keep my little family happy and able to face people.

Wants Freedom

"I presume I will be dragged back into the case to testify, but I hope it will be under the name of Hefner and that they'll let me keep my new identity and my new place in the community to myself.

"I'd rather be dead than have to start in all over again somewhere else. I'm 39 now, and a man has just so many fresh starts in his system."

He has interviewed no newspapermen other than the United Press representatives, he said, and statements originating elsewhere and attributed to him he declared wholly false.

District Attorney Fitts announced that one of his investigators would question Hefner either in Los Angeles or at Hefner's home this week.

HARRY LEE IN FOLSOM

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 6.—UP—Harry Lee, connected with the William Desmond Taylor murder case in Los Angeles which has been reopened by the finding of Otis Hefner by the United Press, is a Chinese opium smuggler and gunman, it was revealed today by the State Bureau of Identification. Lee was connected to the Los Angeles case by a former cellmate in Chicago.

The Chinese gunman is now serving a term in Folsom prison on a narcotics charge. At one time he was arrested in Los Angeles as a murder suspect.

EL CERRITO TO BUY POLICE AUTO

On the recommendation of Police Commissioner J. R. Beck that the city purchase a standard Ford coupe for the police department the council of El Cerrito at its meeting Monday night ordered bids called on Monday, Jan 20.

Action on the construction of a culvert on Cutting boulevard west of San Pablo was laid over until the council finds out whether the property owners would be in favor of widening Cutting boulevard at that point with a permanent improvement.

Street Commissioner Phil A. Lee reported that a corrugated iron pipe culvert would cost $216 and a redwood culvert $115.

Request of James eide, Berkeley, that the city pay $7.00 for hay destroyed by the firemen in burning the weeds in the city was laid over until Heide appeared before the council or interviewed Street Commissioner Phil A. Lee.

Street Commissioner Phil A. Lee was instructed to purchase whatever number of stop signs might be neded for streets crossing San Pablo avenue, at $4.50 per sign.

Cost of construction and permission for the use of land in the Berkeley Country Club Terrace tract for a sign carrying the word El Cerrito will probably be given the council next Monday night according to the report of Councilman Phil A. Lee.

On the recommendation of Chief of Police R. R. Cheek the council denied a dance and soft drink license to Earl Nat for a chicken shack on Cutting boulevard near San Pablo avenue.

City Attorney J. H. Peters was instructed to draw up an ordinance governing the duties and stating the salary or fees to be received by the city health officer.

Councilman Phil A. Lee informed the council that the resignation of City Health Officer R. A. Steven would be presented the council in two weeks as Stevens was moving to San Francisco.

2 Street Jobs In San Pablo Win Approval

The board of supervisors in Martinez yesterday approved two street improvement projects in San Pablo, just outside the Richmond city limits.

One project is in Street Improvement District No. 3. It contemplates the widening of Lowell avenue and Thirty-sixth street, and the widening and extension of Humphrey avenue, and will probably cost about $26,461.

The other is in Street Improvement District No. 4. This contemplates the paving of the west side of San Pablo avenue and portions of Tulare, Maricopa, Lowell and Rheem avenues, between the city limits of Richmond and San Pablo avenue, a distance of about 160 feet. It is estimated this work will cost $13,485.

E. A. Hoffman, city engineer of Richmond, is engineer for the two projects.

2 BODIES FOUND IN FILM CRASH

SANTA MONICA, Jan. 6—(U.P.)—The Pacific Ocean late today gave up further bodies of the victims of the screen's greatest aerial tragedy.

A diver brought to the surface from one of the two planes which crashed head on last Friday, the bodies of Kenneth Hawks, film director, and Tom Harris, Fox studio propertyman.

Hawks, the husband of Mary Astor, screen star, Harris and eight others went to their death last Friday when the two planes, carrying motion picture camera crews, collided while preparing to photograph a parachute jump from a third plane.

The bodies of Max Gold, Ben Frankel and Conrad Wells, other Fox employes, hurtled from the two ships in their drop and were recovered a short time later.

But since Friday the search for the other seven had been made by naval sweepers, airplanes, speedboats and tugs. Hope was dwindling until the two bodies were recovered this afternoon.
